Exciting Opportunity!

The ACE endocarditis Symposium in Brisbane, on Saturday October 24th 2026, will be a hybrid meeting, bringing together many disciplines to discuss evolving aspects of endocarditis.

This is the second symposium for ACE- Australasian Collaboration in endocarditis (and the third endocarditis symposium in Australia in 7 years).

We expect this symposium to attract infectious diseases physicians, microbiologists, cardiologists, cardio-thoracic-surgeons, general physicians, stroke physicians, intensive care physicians, imaging specialists, pharmacists, researchers and anyone with an interest in endocarditis.

The 2024 symposium attracted 50 virtual and 70 in person delegates. As ACE has now expanded in Asia, we expect the attendance to be significantly increased in 2026.

This event will be advertised on professional fora like Ozbug (ASID), CSANZ, ANZSCTS and Stroke Society. As well as at the world endocarditis conference, ISCVI.

This is an excellent opportunity for sponsors to show support for endocarditis management in Australia.

Any profits generated by this symposium will go into research, including the endocarditis biobank, and prizes for best presentations.
